

get along with a song

a unique and engaging workshop that will change the way you communicate in the future.

why

When we use the inclusive and transformational power of music, and a communication tool your participants will be engaged in a unique and uplifting way. Music is linked to our memory, understanding and emotion. Therefore, your participants will form stronger emotional connections with each other and the organization in a unique and uplifting way.

With teambuilding, understanding each other and embracing differences as the essence of this engaging workshop we combine how great communication works with highly engaging music and lots of fun.

how

The workshop is designed for groups of 25 and up to hundreds of participants.

There will be two facilitators present at the workshop – one from engaging meetings and one from SongDivision.

An acoustic re-recording of your song can be sent to you after the workshop.

what

To create a fun and engaging learning environment we have merged the Everything DiSC[®] behavioral theory with the language of music.

The participants will experience an inspiring communication tool that is easy to implement.

They will be working with each other and the band to write and perform an original song resulting in a unifying experience fostering connections and friendships - all about how to get along with at song.

songdivision

partnership

We work together with SongDivision for this workshop. Their facilitators are world-class musicians who have played with the most notable names in music with many having had their own recording contracts. In addition to being talented songwriters, they are all well-versed in business strategy to help communicate your message and build your corporate culture.

Your attendees will feel invigorated, awakened and inspired.

“There will be fun, learning and music!”
